Summer Institute 2009: the Final Program is online

The Summer Institute 2009 is just seven weeks away. We are happy to present a line-up of Canadian and international speakers including:

- André Picard - Making Research on Public Health Accessible to the Public
- Jacques Bourgault and Roz Lasker - Collaboration and public health: different ways to work together
- Dr. Luc Boileau - The Public Health System in Quebec: learnings and challenges
- Brint Milward - Networks - how can they be useful to public health actors?
- Mathieu Ouimet - Ability of non-clinical professionals to absorb scientific research
- Louise Potvin, Kelly Skinner and Janice Popp - Evaluation and knowledge translation in public health: why and how?
- Marleen Bekker - Does science matter? Analysing research-policy-practice interactions in the Dutch Academic Collaborative Centres for Public Health

In addition, the National Collaborating Centres have assembled a diverse group of resource people to animate a full line-up of panels, workshops and networking sessions. Click here to see the Final Program.

Register for the Pre-conference by June 1

Three practical, in-depth sessions are offered in our Pre-conference, July 6th. The registration deadline for these full-day workshops in Determinants of Health, Health Impact Assessment, or Evidence-Informed Decision Making is June 1. Click here to learn more about the Pre-conference.

Online Registration is now open

Registration is now available online. Remember that spaces are limited, so we encourage you to register before the end of May. Click here to visit the registration page.

A Bilingual Event

The Summer Institute will be a fully bilingual event, with simultaneous translation available.

We hope to see you at Mont-Sainte-Anne in July.
